

Long Tall Sally

by Lori-Ann Murphy

I needed to refresh my fly fishing life - which is basically my life.

After years of pouring my heart into guiding with Reel Women Fly Fishing Adventures and then moving to Belize - building Reel Belize from the ground up, I've found a deep sense of renewal in returning to the river - not just as a guide, but as an angler with friends. Three solid weeks of casting and fishing in the most amazing rivers of Patagonia, surrounded by kindred spirits and my dear friend Rachel Finn, reminded me why I started this journey in the first place. The rhythm of finding my cast again - and happy to say, it's still there - but more importantly that I love what happens when we fish and when I fish.

This time on the water wasn't just a break - it was a return. A return to the essence of why I became a guide, why I built Reel Belize: to live fully, connect to wild places and the people who love them. After three intense weeks of fishing in Argentina this past month, I was ready to kill Rachel on a few occasions. That's the beauty of deep friendship and wild adventure: they test you, stretch you, and in the end, remind you who you are and why you came. This renewal is my compass moving forward - anchored in laughter, love, and just the right amount of chaos.

So many of you have met your now great friends from a Reel Women Fly Fishing Trip. You took a chance - signed up. All the doubt from "not being a good enough fly fisher" melted away into holding dream fish. Confidence renewed. And now, so many of you are super accomplished fly fishers also making it your life.

Thank you! Thank you for adding so much to my life. Together we are going to do great things or maybe just as Rachel says, "It's about the hang" - to be together on our fly fishing journey.

Let this fishing season be a very special fly fishing year for you.
