Life on the Fly By Lori-Ann Murphy

I love this time of year because we all get to pay attention to gratitude. Living in San Pedro Belize we celebrate Thanksgiving Day - a traditional United States holiday shared beyond her borders. Tomorrow will be turkey dinner with neighbors on the beach - we figure all major storms have passed for awhile anyway - and we might as well start from the shores of Ambergris Caye to get the celebration going. And as we do so, I hope we can make the world small again. Because when the world is small - we can hear our voice and protect all that has been given to us from Mother Earth.

This evening I am April Vokey's guest. People are asking about Belize travel - what's life like there anyway? Well, please join me tonight - 5 pm PST on Anchored Outdoors. I'm pretty excited to share a report from last weeks Permit Quest group! Here is an opportunity for me to discuss and show you how we fish these flats. It's a hunt, a puzzle and getting in the zone. Something we all share with our flyrods in a variety of conditions around the globe.

I want to send out a tropical hug so big to each of you. My goodness, Reel Women Fly Fishing Adventures and Reel Belize - two little businesses with a big heart - is all here because of you. Together we are that big hug around the world. Together we have learned to deal with real adversity and find solutions. With our connections we keep finding that gratitude can be cast in all waters. Thank you so much for your friendship. Cheers to you! Happy Thanksgiving. L-A

Join Lori-Ann and April on Anchored Outdoors Wednesday, November 25th 5 PM PST

Are you curious about how travel in Belize is going? Join Lori-Ann as she shares the recent travel experiences our November Permit Quest guests had. She'll have information on Belize Gold Standards, airlines and how its all working. We'll have the latest flyfishing report -Belizian waters didn't have pressure for eight months as Covid-19 lockdowns restricted locals from fishing. We'll also cover great upcoming events for the saltwater season as well as Summer 2021 in the Western US.

Register here for this free online event with Lori-Ann and April!
